HONGRONG, MARCH 12TH, 1872.

IT was recently announced that Mr. HART is no doubt give most valuable advice to the at present adopted. Pekin Government upon this subject, as his experience in connection with putting the maritime duties upon a satisfactory footing would go far towards solving the problem in connection with the transit dues. One diffculty with regard to the subject has always been that we have not thoroughly their appreciation of the efforts of this talented that they had twelve or fourteen persons on waistcost which defendant had lost. understood it. The Consuls were to obtain information after the signature of the Treaty regarding the duties payable on the various routes through which foreign produce was expected to pass; but, unfortunately, the difficulties in the way of performing this task were such that it was never accomplished and the matter was somewhat roughly compromised by the Imperial Government promising that no inland charges should be levied upon goods which paid a half of the tariff rates as commutation of the Transit Dues. This arrangement was never thoroughly recognised by the Provincial Authorities, who to the present_day feel that they are unjustly deprived of their legitimate taxes that is, of sums which they have always been permitted to raise in their own districts; and as a consequence every attempt has been made to evade the provisions in the Treaty. For this the Imperial Government is in no small degree responsible, as they must have been well aware when they entered upon the transit dues arrangements that they would be unable to carry them out, unless the Provincial authorities concurred in the plan, had never been the case.

This is the point at which it would seem the matter ought to be taken up at the present time, and towards the solution of which it is to be hoped Mr. HART's memorandum will tend. Possessing the confidence of the Pelsing officials, that gentleman will no doubt be able to induce them at all events to listen to the arguments which have been preferred by foreign Representatives on this subject and if he can succeed in this, the Pekin authorities in their turn may be able to impress the true bearing of the question upon the Provincial Mandarins. Facts are at present available, which could not be advanced before, in favour of a more liberal policy, and which must show the local officials that their fears as to the diminution of their and 89, thus winning by 79 runs in one innings. revenues consequent upon the introduction The bowling of Messrs. Deane, Darby, and Foss of the transit due system are in reality groundless, as a more liberal policy would have the effect of increasing trade to such an extent as would much more than compensate for the lower scale of duty charged. This exceptions, was not at all up to the mark, sevehas been noticeably the case at Chinkiang, ral easy catches being missed. The long-stopand some other places where the old monopolice have been done away with, and a better | was a very pleasant one. system introduced; and this fact cannot nossibly have escaped the notice of the Chinese officials. The great point to insist upon is that the local officials are really interested in the adjustment of the matter upon purely financial grounds, that is, that they are keep ing away a large amount of trade by their. restrictive policy. If this be once fully understood, it may be boped that a great portion of the opposition now raised by local mandarine will be withdrawn, and that it may be possible to organise some system similar to the Inspectorate of Maritime Customs, whereby the transit dues will become subject to some sort of regulation under foreign supervision. Of course, it would be necessary in connection with such a plan, that the jurisdiction of the local authorities in their own districts should be fully recognised; and it might be desirable that the

The Chronicle and Directory for 1872. Inspectorate of Inland Dues should be worked under independent foreign control; but this could probably be without great difficulty provided for, if once the provincial officials could be brought to see their advantage in having this long vexed question adjusted and induced to co-operate in placing the the U.S.S. Colorado, with being drunk and equitable basis for the future.

Our attention has been called in several made by the old members of the Police Force, concerning the manner in which they are at men who have recently joined. These comrivalry always existing between members of any body like a Police Force. But they are uttered in so many directions, and with such detail, that we cannot believe they are altogether without foundation. For example, it appears that the old members of the Force some time ago sent a deputation to wait on the Captain Superintendent with a perfectly respectful petition in which they have just joined. This request was certainly not very extraordinary or unreasonable; but the unfortunate men were, we are informed, perfectly astounded by being informed by the Captain Superintendent that they were committing a breach of discipline, and that all who did not formally retract from the petition within a given time would be dismissed or least of it, seems to be a very high-handed way of dealing with the men, and is not at all likely to tend to the reorganization of the Force. A similar case is mentioned as having happened only a day or two ago, when one of the new Police was brought up before the Superintendent charged with drunkenness and dismissed with merely the fine of one dollar; and it is gravely debated by the old New York......Messrs. The ground at Stone Cutters Island in which the patients who died from small pox have been buried, is left without any fencing or boundary mark. Considering that it has been regularly consecrated as a burial ground, the omission is somewhat striking. The cost of a small fencing would not be ruinous to the Colony, and it would certainly seems that decency and propriety demand it.

A correspondent has called attention to an act of great discourtesy committed by the semimilitary member of the Committee of the Athletic Sports at their gathering on Baturday last. It appears that a number of European residents, ship musters and others, were watching the sports, when the member above mentionedpassed, accompanied by the Acting Registrar-General, and thinking that more space was necessary, addressed the soldler keeping the and they of course were also aware that such | ground there thus: "Drive those people back -use your stick." Our correspondent holds it is generally considered more civilised and courteous to ask spectators to retire ere resorting to force, and objects that in this case the energetic member reversed the order of things. It would perhaps avoid any imperiousness of the kind complained of if the Superintendent of Police were applied to for a picket on future occasions, as it is not desirable to have the military to keep the ground on the occasion of Qivil Sports. We should have preferred to have given our correspondent's letter, but his indignation carries him a little too far, and it is much too per-

ORICKET.

Last Thursday and Friday, the 7th and 8th instants, the Hongkong Oricket Club played a return match against the Navy, (assisted by the Military contingent.) The result proved to be a still worse beating for the Navy than before the Club scoring 228 runs against the Navy's 60 was too good for brick scoring, and the double figures optained by the services were by Brown, Donner, and Sergeant Hilton. For the Club. Deane, Chater, and Darby were the chief acorers, the bowling of the Services was, however, far from being good, and their fielding, with one or two ping by Wakem was exceptionally good. The year 1861 is stated as the time when rebellion commenced. It is emphatically in the position to be well informed, that the first move was made in this province of Shensi, and that the province Kansu and the distant regions of Turkestan Mahomedans there being encouraged by the example ast by their or religionists in Rhensis It is for this reason that they had such easy work in the far west, in killing the Chinese and making themselves independent.

Not much of a definite character can be ascertained in regard to the immediate causes of come under the notice of the police, and the opthe rebullion. Those of a more remote characfather, who was a watchman, found the box ter date for back in history. Since the time when, under the Tang dynasty, the Mahomedan the fact to the Police. Although those of Shensi and and Kansa wear the queue and speak Chinese, they are considered by the pagans as a different people; and this view is corroborated by their features, which differ from those of the Obinese proper. The pagana use generally, for themselves the well known term "Han jin," to mark their distinction from the Maboinedane. These, including numerous converts of purely Chinese origin, are called Hwei-hiver, and since they are in rebellion. Hwel-fei. The contempt in which, the Mahomedana hold the pork-cating Han jin. and the aversion which these have against people living among them and having manners and customs so different from their own as even to preclude intermarriage, has created since ancient times much ill-feeling between the adbecents of the two religions, and: it has much increased within the last decades. The Ma bomedans, who, in general, prospered well, and are a more vigorous and energetic race than the Hau-jin, grew proud and overbearing, while these had an advantage by their greatly superior numbers. Acts of violence became more and more frequent. The mutual ill-feeling ingreased when, in 1860, the Tuiping rebels made a first, though very short, invasion in the province of Shensi. The pagen inhabitants repulsed it, and accuse the Mahomedans of notbaving assisted them, but of rather having embraced the cause of the invaders. The Mahomedans, in their turn, accuse the paguns that they propagated inflammatory addresses throughout the province, inciting the population to the annihilation of all Mahomedans, Matters had indeed come to such a pitch, that the only remaining question was this, which of the two parties would commence hostilities. ting articles about itself. One of these, which The initiative rested with those who were most has just appeared, would appear to most people energetic, that is, the Mahomedans. THE AFFRAY WITH THE FRENCH POLICE AT SHANGHAI.

(N. C. Daily News, Feb. 29th.) The French police had rather a severe ret contre yesterday alternoon with some men on shore from the No. 2 Chinese gunboat. It ap pears that a day or two ago about a dozen men from the same vessel entered a teashoo and theatre near the Little East Gute, where one of them, presenting a badidollar, demanded that they should have admittance to the play. The doorkeeper refused to receive the bad dollar, but fearing to provoke the men by insisting on excluding them, allowed them to pass while he called his master. When the latter came, he also objected to the bad coin, but the med persisted that it was good, and, whether good or bad, they would have their amusement. tea shop keeper reminded them that they were on ground where inwieseness would not be perand Hi followed afterwards, one by one, the mitted, and that an officer of their force had only a few days back been made to smart for similar arrogance. A native defective of the English Municipal Force, present in undress, was recognised by one of the men, who had, before joining the gunbout, Court at Foochow to give effect to a judgment on this man the insuits the gallant native forces had suffered. The detective was seized by the queue by several and hustled about, but managed to get out of their hands and, letting himself down by a back window, escaped. The men however, seized one of the shop people and took him away. Two of them were afterwards arrested, and, vesterday morning, at the Mixed Court, received 50 blows each. Immediately on this, leave was granted by the mandarin in charge of the gunboat to a larger party of men who went to the same teashop and created disturbance, which they wound up by seianother of the shopmen. A French policeman being attracted to the spot, interfered to prevent the man being taken away, and was brutally attacked by the crowd braves, receiving neveral cuts on the head and face from some sharp instrument, and severe contusions on one arm from bamboos On assistance being sent for to the sub-station near by, a corporal came down and tried to help his comrade and accure the ringleaders in the row. He too got a bad cut norous the forebead, but both policemen kept to three men whom they had seized, till they got them into the station. The rest retreated, taking wit them the shopman. Some of the local rowdies also flung bricks at the police, and one man wis arrested. The Control French Station was at once communicated with by telegraph, and a posse of men went to the place fully armed, but the affair was over. The injured men are not seriously hurt, but it may be a few weeks before they are again fit for duty. The affair, it will be seen, has some connexion with a case that occurred last week at the Mix ed Court. The Captain of a Chinese gunbon ying in the Scochow Creek, went to a tea shop, had refreshment to the value of $1, and, after the manner of his class, refused to pay. On the shop-keep rinsisting, be promised to pay o board the boat if a messenger were sent. Complaint was made at the Police Station, and the case came before the Mired Coart-Mr. Hass sitting as assessor The Ouptain tried to excuse himself, but failed signally; Chen was of course loth, to punish a mundario, however petty, though admitting the disgrace of the proceeding. But Mr. Hass insisted that no such oppression should take place in the Foreign Settlement, whatever might be done under Chinese custom. It notoriously the practice of gunboat men help themselves at shops of all kinds, without paying; and here was an opportunity to make an example. Let the prisoner be fined half a dollar for every blow of the bamboo-$50. In this view Chen was at last nduced to acquiesce, and the Captain was ordered to take the amount of the fine, the next morning, to Mr. Haae' office. He did so, and was given a receipt for the amount, being "a sung-by them to the order of respondent: in the Foreign Settlement." He was further told that he must take his gunboat beyond the settlements, a command which he also promptly complied with.

This sentence has encouraged, among the native tradesmen, a spirit of resistance to the extortion of these rowdies: and the row near the Little East Gate was a consequence of this theatre for nothing; the owner declined to ad him into compliance; and thence the row. > H.B.M. SUPREME COURT: SHANGHAI. A case of considerable interest and importance was the subject of a somewhat lengthened hearing to-day before Mr. Goodwin. Acting Chief Judge of H. B. M. Supreme Court. The parties in the case are Messre. Westray and Gibbs, of New York; and Mr. John Foster of Foochow. The history of the case is briefly as Mesers. Westray and Gibbs, through their attorneys, Mesers, Gilman & Co., towards the close of 1871 applied to the British Consular of the Supreme Court of New York, obtained against Messrs. John Foster & Co. for the sum of $50,000, as balance of accounts between the parties. Defendant opposed the application. and applied to the Court to dismiss it on the grounds: 1.—That the judgment of the Supreme Court of New York was irregular, inasmuch as defendants had never been cited to appear, and the case was entirely undefended while they believed that a judgment obtained against a foreigner in an American Court, when defendant was not present or represented, was not binding within English jurisdiction. 2 .--That defendent had a contra claim against plaintiffs, for a far larger amount than is named in the New York judgment. 3.—That there was no Court in China where defendant could bring an action against plaintiffs for their contra claim, and the allowance of plaintiffs' application therefore would inflict munifest hardship and injustice on defendant. Defendant also opposed the admission of documents transmitted by the New York Court as evidence against him in the case before the Consular Court at Foodhow

The Consular Court decided as to the documents that it would admit them only in so far as they gave the history of the case in New York, but so as in no way to influence the Court as evidence against defendant. And, after bearing defendant's evidence, the Court allowed defendant's demurrers with regard to the contra account, and dismissed the application of

From this judgment plaintiffs forthwith appealed, on the ground that the Court had improperly, refused to admit the documentary evilence of the case supplied by the Supreme Court of New York, whereby their onse was muterially damaged, and otherwise the judgment of the Consular Court was against law and equity.

The case being thus transferred to Shonghai Mr. Rennie was engaged as Counsel for the appellants, and Mr. Ennies was instructed to conduct the case of the respondent. Previous. ly to the case being heard, Mr. Eames moved the Court that respondent might be allowed to file his cross action against appellants, and that it should form part of the case appealed, and be heard at the same time. He further moved for an adjournment of the case till June next, in order that Mr. John Foster, who is now in America, but is expected in Shanghai by the time mentioned, might be present to give evidence. The hearing of this motion was partially gone into yesterday, but was adjourn. ed, and subsequently the matter was ordered to be argued preliminarily to the hearing of the

It may be further stated that the accounts of the appellants (Messra, Westray and Gibbs) referred chiefly to tea transactions, commissions on teas, and the purchase and despatch of certain etcamers—including the steam tug Woo-The cross claim of respondent is chiefly made up of losses alleged to have been sustained on the steam tug Woodung - which losses were the direct result of appellants' negligence.

Though the manner in which the gase came before the Court to day was formally only a preliminary motion, against which Mr. Repnie had to show cause why it should not be granted, yet as it was impossible to argue on the motion without, in fact, going thoroughly isto the case, it was agreed that the hearing of the motion and of the entire case should be one and the same.

Mr. Rengie, therefore, proceeded to argue for the appellants that nothing in the demorrer of respondent was effectual to stop the execution of the New York judgment for his clients. Recited to appear before the New York tribunal, and that the judgment given in absence was unjust and wrongful. But the fact was that ion to suffer. They had secured a judgment in

Judgment was delivered on the 6th instakt as follows :-This case was decided in the Provincial Court of Foochow in favour of the defendants. and against this decision the plaintiffs appeal. An action was brought by the appellants, who Kin-fung to travelling merchant are an American firm, residing in New York, U. S. Court at New York, and that therefore the evidence before the said Court was incomplete, and it therefore went into the case again and found in favour of the defendant. What I have to decide is, whether the Court below, or this Court, can reopen the question decided in the Foreign Court of New York. It is well established that an THE British Steamer English Court will ordinarily not reject a foreign judgment as evidence of a debt, where all things upon the face of the judgment appear to have been | will be despatched for the above ports on or rightly performed and no question as to jurisdiction is raised, unless it be shown extrinsically that the judgment was obtained by fraud, or by means clearly contrary to natural justice. as, for instance, without any notice, summons, or appearance of the party defendant, or any equivalent proceeding. Now in the present case, the judgment appears upon the face of it to be perfectly regular, according to Captain Keay, will have quick despatch as Fancy Woollen HOSIERY, MITIS, CUFFS the procedure of the Supreme Court of New above. York. An answer was put in to the suit by Mr. Ward, as attorney for the defendant Mr. Foster, from instructions given him by that gentleman bimself, when at New York, in 1859, from written memoranda and from divers consultations held with him. From Mr. Foster's own evidence it appears that he gave Mr. Ward authority in writing to defend the case. I cannot hold the allegation of the defendant, that he asked his brother in Canada to protect his above. interests in conjunction with Mr. Ward, and that his brother unfortunitely died before the hearing, sufficient to show that any unfair advantage was taken of him. The whole case and the claims on both sides, as appears by the report of Mr. Nicoll, the referse, to whom, according to the practice of the Supreme Court of New York; the case was referred, were gone into by that gentleman and the proof heard-and his report was adopted by the Court. tinuous changes of the vast exhalation sures his life; in this he is the reverse of a which softens, imparts a bluish tint to, and dims the contours, the whole producing the melancholy—the life of a humid country. At Richmond, I felt this still better. From the terrace can be discerned several leagues of country; the Thames, which is not larger than the Seine, winds through meadows, between clumps of large trees. All is green, of a soft green, almost effaced by the distance; one feels the freshness and the peace of the infinite vegetation; the grey sky extends over it a low and heavy dome; at the horizon are whitish mists in floating layers, here and there a darkened cloud, or the violet patch of a shower. From all the ground rises a sluggish mist; one watches it as if it were a piece of muslin drawn between: the interstices of the trees, and gradually the floating gauze of the earth reunites with the uniform veil of the sky. How still is the offices. park! Troops of deer feed in the moist brake; the hinds approach the fence, and gaze on the passer by without fear. Can a tract of country be better arranged for relaxing the nerves of the man who struggles and toils? The oaks, the lime trees, the spreading and huge chestnut trees, are noble creatures which seem to speak in low tones with majesty and security; at their feet is thick and tall grass; the blades of grass, whereon the rain has left its tears, smile with a tender emanates from the air, the sky, and all things Nature welcomes the soul, weary and worn with striving. How one feels that the landscape suits them, and why they love it!

Without doubt their climate befits trees, are as beautiful. From Kew Gardens to Hampton Court extends an alley of gigantic chestnut trees, of which the large pink and white bunches resemble girandoles. The foliage is so thick that underneath it is cool in the height of the sun. Upon the velvet of the grass, constellated with flowers and bordered by nasturtiums, stand forth clusters of rhododendrons, as tall as two men, entirely covered with rose-coloured flowers, amid which bees are humming. There are so many of them, they are so magnificent, of so tender a tissue and of so fine a tone, they are grouped with such profusion in a single clump wholly impregnated with light, that one remains dazzled; it is delicious, intoxicating; almost beyond Nature. A little way farther, in an enormous hot-house, palms, &c., &c., Rent Moderato. as large as oaks, spread their curious vegetation, and bananas unfold leaves which would cover a child twelve years old. This is one of their talents; they admirably understand the architecture of trees, of glass and of flowers: I have not seen even a classical palace or even a poor cottage where it was uncomprehended Sometimes, indeed, the effect is too strong: in the sun, it is overpowering; the incomparable verdure then assumes tones so rich and intense that they cannot be transferred to canvas; they would offend, they would be too raw; it is necessary to enjoy them with the mind, not with the eyes; they are a feast, and, as it were, an outburst of delight; in order to prepare and maintain them, swell and expand the tissues, moisture was required, excessive moisture, the caress and the guardianship of soft vapour; beneath warmer sky, such flowers would be stiffened and dried; they are not accustomed to bear the full sun; hence it is that they break forth to day under his blaze. They have the tint of a beautiful lady; they, too, are patricians developed, preserved, embellished by all the refinements of art and of luxury I have had the same impression at a fulldress morning party, before a staircase filled from top to bottom with young laughing ladies in swelling and sweeping dresses of tulle, of silk, the head covered with diamonds. the shoulders bare. This was a unique sensation, that of splendour and brilliancy carried to the highest pitch-all the flowers civilization and of nature in a single bouquet and in a single perfume.

Yet English taste is discoverable here also: the borders have been plant. city. Apply to ed with standard rosebushes, and these, closely trained along the slight espaliers. form columns of flowers. Ducks, swans, swim in all the pieces of water; water-lilies unfold their velvet stars. The old trees are propped up by iron rods. When they die, in order that they may not be wholly lost, the remainders of their trunks are converted into a kind of huge urn. Clearly, they are cared for and they are loved. There are no fences. I noticed young boarding-school girls walking and playing on the grass, but they never pluck a flower. The following notice suffices to protect the garden: -" It is hoped that the public will abstain from destroying that which is cultivated for the public gratifica-I have seen families of common people taking their dinners on the green THE undersigned begs to intimate that Mr. having any other.
